

ARTISTS TO WATCH

THESE CREATIVES WILL CONTINUE TO CAPTIVATE IN THE COMING YEARS.

ZHANG

Her recent exhibit is documented at the George Y Library to a place where she spent time duplicating a vase, this and Institute of Art alum saw the smallest are often the fascinating.

NETHER

This Baltimore native known for his large-scale street art had a prolific 2015 and gives no indication of slowing down. He expertly showcases social activism by connecting his work to larger social and historical themes. Most importantly, his love for the community shines through on each wall.

BOBBY ENGLISH JR.

This sculptor, performance artist, and activist's work is provocative and spellbinding. He weaves themes of ancestry, identity, and mythology into his meditative art, which often feels like commentary on our connection to the past and reminds us not to forget who we are.
